Passion For Dreams

It is often said that whatever you do, do it passionately or do what you are passionate about. This is a story depicting the life of four friends, their ridiculous school and college life, a world beyond books, the world of cinematography and theater, they dreamt of.

These four creative minds always thought themselves as actors influencing world trends, but their parents wanted them to pursue engineering which would secure them a high paid job. It was something against their will but they had no other option than following their parents' decision. With heavy hearts they went to an engineering college. One day, they all decided to go to Mumbai to do what they want and pursue their passion in cinema. After spending a week in Mumbai they realized there are many hardships that they have to face in order to get successful. Out of the four friends three friends quit and one of them was determined. With the help of a senior actor and his close friend who was a producer he gave his audition and the producer liked his audition and soon he signed a big project. His journey from a junior struggling actor to a known actor was soon going to come to an end.

He is now one of the legendary actors, who is well known for his determination and hardwork. He is mentioned in the books whose life lessons are taught by the teachers in school and colleges and the students are told to take note of the qualities needed in order to make your dreams come true.
